TWO CENTS

TWENTY-EIGHTH DIVISION IS CITED IN GENERAL ORDERS FOR GALLANTRY

110th Infantry Is a Member
Of This Splendid Command

CHARLEROI BOYS AMONG THEM

For conspicuous bravery during the advance in the valley of the Anire and in the Argonne forest the members of the Twenty-eighth Division formerly the National Guard of Pennsylvania, has been commended by the commanding general of the American First Army Corps and cited in orders from general headquarters for their splendid work on the Vesle river. A copy of the orders, which have been received in Pennsylvania, shows that the Division is assured a place in the front ranks of the "Fighting Red Division," which consists of organizations which have won the right to be termed shock troops and to face the best soldiers of the enemy.

In the Twenty-eighth Division are thousands of boys from Western Pennsylvania and hundreds from Washington county, including the old "Fighting Tenth" regiment, in which there are a number of Charleroi boys serving at the present time. The action for which the Division was commended by Maj. Gen. Hunter Liggett extended from the morning of September 26 until the night of October 9. In spite of the assistance made by the Germans the Division forced them back seven miles and captured many towns and other points of great strategic value to the American forces.

The general order sent from general headquarters by command of Major General Muir, in which the number of the Division was cited, the members of the Division were assured the place in the "red" division and highly commends them for the splendid part they took in the operations which assisted so materially in forcing the Germans to seek an armistice.

Clingerman, recently added to the fleet of the Carnegie Steel Company, for the towing of coal from the sixth pool to the by-products plant at Clairton has been placed in commission and is reported as doing excellent work. The Clingerman passed down through Lock No. 4 this morning, while at the same time the steamer Hillman, just rebuilt and placed in commission after being wrecked in the Fifth pool several months ago, was passing up.

TO OBSERVE OLD FOLKS DAY

Special Service at Washington Ave. Presbyterian Church

HAS BECOME AN ANNUAL EVENT

A feature of the services at the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church on Sunday will be the annual observance of "Old Folks Day." These exercises to begin at 11 o'clock are conducted by the pastor, Rev. John C. Burson. These services in the past have proved to be of the most interesting character, and have always been attended by large congregations. The services tomorrow are expected to be equally interesting while it is anticipated that the attendance will be as large as in former years. The order of exercises has been arranged as follows:

Piano prelude—Doxology.
Invocation.
Hymn.
Scripture Lesson.
Psalter selection, Nos. 365-367.
Prayer.
Offering—announcements.
Hymn.
Sermon—"Strength for the Journey."
Prayer.
Special tribute—Congregation will stand while tokens of love are presented to guests—those over 70 years of age.
Hymn.
Benediction.

Directions For Making The Prevention Spray

One of the means used to overcome infections of the upper air passages is a spraying of the nose with a solution of Dichloramine-T in an oil called Chlorosane. This has been used to a considerable extent in the United States Army. The strength of the solution is 2 per cent. With a good atomizer adapted to oil and an air pressure of between 12 and 15 pounds, three seconds application in each nostril is sufficient. The action of the antiseptic lasts about two hours and after this there is a coating of oil remaining for a considerably longer time which protects the surface. One application daily will, therefore, offer a good degree of protection against infection of the parts reached.

Dichloramine-T as purchased has often undergone a little decomposition. When this is the case, it has a sharp, pungent and disagreeable odor. Such samples should not be used for preparing solutions without purification. The simplest method for purifying is to dissolve the dichloramine-T in chloroform in which it is very soluble, while the impurities due to decomposition are insoluble. A little more than an ounce of chloroform will dissolve an ounce of dichloramine-T without warming. This solution is then filtered to remove the insoluble impurities and the clear filtrate is allowed to evaporate. The purified dichloramine-T then separates in clean crystals. It is best to let the chloroform evaporate without heating. This takes place rapidly in a shallow dish. The last traces of chloroform will pass off quickly if the crystals are spread out on clean paper. Do not put in strong light as this is likely to cause some decomposition.

To prepare a solution of dichloramine-T in chlorosane, take 1-4 of the required amount of chlorosane and heat it over a free flame in an agitate-ware vessel to about 80 degrees centigrade (176 Fahrenheit). Then add the weighed amount of dichloramine-T, stir or agitate until the crystals are dissolved then add the remaining 3-4 of the chlorosane at the room temperature, thus cooling the mixture. The resulting solution should be perfectly clear and have only an odor like that of paraffin oil. If kept in the dark and sealed, this solution will keep for several days but exposure to strong light causes a rather rapid deterioration, revealed by cloudiness and a bad smell. Such solutions should not be used. In making up the solution it is convenient to go entirely by weight. Take the weight of the vessel, then add chlorosane by weight. 1-4 of the total, heat, add the dichloramine-T and then bring the weight up to the calculated total by pouring in more chlorosane.

Dry oil solutions of dichloramine-T can be used in contact with metal (nickel) without corroding it, if the solutions have not undergone deterioration. To clean vessels or atomizers, drain out the oil, then rinse with three or four changes of small quantities of carbene. Let all of this evaporate before again using the vessels or atomizer.

For domestic use, a fairly good substitute for dichloramine-T in oil is a watery solution of chloramine-T ("chlorazene") 1 part to 500 of water. For this it is necessary to use a hard rubber atomizer as this solution corrodes metals. But the solution will keep a very long time. The spraying should be more frequent than with the oil (2 or 3 times daily) to offer anything like the same protection.

INFLUENZA CASES REPORTED MILD

Compilations from physicians' reports during the week show that new cases of influenza have averaged from 20 to 30 a day, but one distinguishing feature is the fact that they appear to be of a milder nature. Another feature is the fact that whole families are not being attacked at the same time by the disease, one member only being ill with the malady. This makes the work of physicians a great deal easier, and while the trouble has not been stamped out in the community, it appears to be under control.

The emergency hospital may be able to close the coming week, thus being a matter for the civilian director to determine, however. When the cases have been reduced to a negligible number it is expected that arrangements will be made at the Charleroi-Monessen hospital to take care of them.

This evening the Home Defense Police, at the request of the Health Board, will patrol the streets for the purpose of preventing crowds from congregating, and citizens who are asked to "move on" should take the request with good grace. It is a preventive measure and it is being done for the benefit of the community.

SOLDIERS' CHRISTMAS

Many Packages Sent From Charleroi To Men
Overseas

NUMBER WILL REACH ABOUT 500

It is expected that about 500 Christmas packages will be sent from Charleroi to soldiers from this town now serving with the American Expeditionary Forces in France and Italy. A shipment of more than one hundred packages was made several days ago, and this evening the Charleroi Red Cross will make the final shipment to the point of embarkation at Hoboken, N. J. While all packages have not been turned in to the local Secretary, Miss Minnie Richardson, they are expected to be on hand before the final closing of the mails this afternoon. All packages are sent parcel post and will be delivered to the men in France before Christmas.

The local officials of the Red Cross in charge of the work have been very careful to observe all the regulations in connection with the shipment of packages, confining relatives and friends to but one package for each man now in foreign service. This did not mean that the soldier could get a box from several different friends but only one box from his family or others. No duplications have been allowed, in spite of the accusation made against the local Chapter and all duplications have been eliminated. Should they escape the local officials they would have been checked over at the Hoboken pier, where they would have been discovered, with a possibility that the soldier would have missed his Christmas altogether. Duplicate slips have come from France, but the Red Cross Chapters were prohibited by regulations from sending more than one box to men in service abroad.

Charleroi's contribution to men overseas will be a fine one and a Christmas greeting which will be appreciated. Each box will contain a picture post card of some familiar scene, as well as other tokens from family and friends.

MONESSEN POSTOFFICE IS ALMOST READY

Postmaster Brautegan of Monessen, has orders from the postoffice department at Washington to move into the new building now nearing completion between the 1st and 15th of December. He has reported, however, that it will not be completed and ready for occupancy before the 1st of January. The contract called for the completion of the building last July, but on account of the extreme difficulties in securing building material at that time, extensions have been allowed. Furniture and fixtures are what is causing the delay at the present time.

REAPING BENEFIT

From the Experience of Charleroi People.

We are fortunate indeed to be able to profit by the experience of our neighbors. The public utterances of Charleroi residents on the following subject will interest and benefit many of our readers. Read this statement. No better proof can be had.

Mrs. Fred Jackson, 207 Prospect avenue, Charleroi, says: "I was troubled by a constant backache. If I did a little extra work the pain in my back was intense. I didn't rest well at night and got up in the morning lame and stiff. If I stooped, sharp pains caught me and I could hardly straighten. I also had rheumatic pains in my back and arms and I couldn't do any sweeping. Dizzy spells and not flashes bothered me terribly. As Doan's Kidney Pills had been used in the family with good results, I got a box at Piper Bros. Drug Store and began taking them. One box cured me."

ECONOMIC WASTE IN LONG DISTANCE BUYING

The only road to real economy is the road that leads to the Home Town. This is the first commandment in community development. Whenever we pass up our own community and send an order away from home we break this commandment by one stroke of the pen. Give your home dealer the chance to fill that order. Given the same conditions, he can beat any out-of-town house in the country. The Long Distance route is the road to waste, over-buying and false economy. This cartoon shows vividly the economic waste in long distance buying.
